

RARE MEDICAL CAUSES OF RASHES IN BABIES

1

Congenital Syphilis

Characterized by skin discoloration and rashes

Image source: CDC

2

Kawasaki Disease

Characterized by reddish rash and swelling on extremities

Image source: The Primary Care Dermatology Society

3

Meningococcal Diseases

Characterized by a maculopapular rash

Image source: The Royal Children's Hospital

4

Incontinentia Pigmenti

Characterized by a blistering and progressive rash

Image source: National Library of Medicine

5

Transient Neonatal Pustular Melanosis

Characterized by a pustular rash on the forehead, groin area, and body

Image source: DermNet NZ

6

Erythema Toxicum Neonatorum

Characterized by blotchy red rashes and lesions

Image source: CDC

References:

1. Congenital Syphilis; NORD
2. Kawasaki Disease; NORD
3. Meningococcal Diseases; MSD Manuals
4. Incontinentia Pigmenti; NFED
5. Transient neonatal pustular melanosis; DermNet NZ
6. Erythema Toxicum Neonatorum; AOCD