

Helping Children Understand The Meaning Of FRIENDSHIP

Friendship isn't always perfect, and there can be minor arguments because everybody has different opinions.

Children need to know that mistakes may happen, but it doesn't mean that their friend is bad or they are bad as long as they apologize and never repeat it.

If their friend is in trouble, they should try to help them or take the help of an adult to assist them.

If anyone in their group is doing something wrong, they should tell them to stop and help them in doing so.

Friends never break promises. So teach them to follow up on things they promised their friends.

Encourage them to share and help each other in need, be it stationeries, food, or toys.
