

Common Mistakes While Handling Children's Manipulation

Reacting, such as getting angry and screaming, instead of responding.

Requesting them to understand in exchange for a toy or treat

Disagreeing with your partner over the situation in front of the child.

Getting emotionally blackmailed by falling for their tears and words.

Giving them long excuses for saying no instead of the truth and postponing the request

Saying "no" to their wants without understanding their reason first.

