

8 Interesting Facts About CRABS

Japanese Spider crab is the world's biggest crab, weighing up to 19kg.

Crabs are capable of moving in all directions, including sideways.

Crabs use sound to communicate with one another.

Crabs are often referred to as "spiders of the sea."

The green crab is known as "the cockroach of the sea" because of its relative invulnerability.

Decorator crabs gather bits of nearby seaweed and create a camouflage to fit in with the surroundings.

Stone crabs have stronger claws on the right side and can grow them back.

Hermit crabs scavenge snail shells and use them to protect their tender underbellies.