

FACTS ABOUT PUDENDAL NEURALGIA

Pudendal neuralgia refers to crotch or pelvic pain due to irritation or damage to the pudendal nerve in the pelvis. Here are some facts about it.

It causes tingling or stabbing pain in the vagina.

Pain can be uncomfortable and distressing.

Pain may develop gradually or suddenly and can be constant or worsen over time.

Sitting down or standing up can worsen the pain.

It can be felt as swelling or as an object in the vagina.

Reference:

1. Pudendal Neuralgia; National Health Service