

Points To Remember While Asking Tag Questions To Your Partner

Do not go overboard when posting questions to your partner, as all your friends would see your status.

Respect each other, especially in the virtual space where you have a larger audience.

Ask questions based on your partner's comfort level and the status of your relationship.

If you are not so good at social media, check others' posts to know about the kind of pictures they post and the questions they ask.

Avoid inappropriate questions that find no relevance to your relationship.
