

Symptoms That Require You To See A Doctor

Strabismus may sometimes be a sign of other severe conditions such as retinoblastoma, tumor (intracranial pathology), or cerebral palsy.

Limited outward rotation of the eyes

Abnormal red reflex (reddish reflection of the eye)

Fussiness caused by headaches

Uncontrolled and repetitive side-to-side movement of the eyes (nystagmus)

Face turned to one side

Reference:

Diagnosis and management of childhood squints: investigation and examination with reference to red flags and referral letters; National Center for Biotechnology Information