

Moving To THE NEXT BASE: When To Not Do It

1

Don't feel compelled to move on to the next base and be guilty about leaving things at the first base if the kiss made you feel uncomfortable.

2

Pause and think before going to second base if you like them or want to fool around. If it is a yes to the latter, it's better to stop and let them know about it.

3

The third base is much more intimate than the first two, so politely say no if your partner comes off as unhygienic.

4

If they keep rushing you to the fourth base despite you wanting to slow down, they may be more interested in a one-night stand than an emotional connection.

5

Even if there is no reasonable explanation, you can say no to moving to the next base since it's better than being sorry and letting each other down later.

