

Buying Guide For A High Chair

Plastic high chairs are typically lightweight and portable, while wooden ones are more stable but less portable. So pick one based on your preference.

Consider purchasing a foldable high chair if you have limited floor space.

Make sure the high chair has a secure harness for your child's safety but one that is easy to open and close.

Consider the adjustability, including the height, seat recline angle, and distance of the tray from the child.

Look for a footrest, cushion, or padded seat as accessories to improve the overall quality.

Choose a high chair built to last and withstand the wear and tear of daily use.
