

Points To Consider

When Buying Toys

For Young Boys

Opt for toys that let the child test their knowledge through trial and error

Choose toys that offer first-hand exploration to help understand concepts

Look for toys that offer an adrenaline rush and productivity, such as racing cars and DIY construction sets

Opt for toys that allow your child to hone their creative thinking skills

Avoid toys associated with violence and aggression, like guns

Consider STEM toys that help develop physical and cognitive skills

Reference:

1. Characteristics of Boys' and Girls' Toys; Massachusetts Institute of Technology

