5 DIFFERENT TYPES OF Compatibility

Sexual compatibility

Couples who share similar sexual preferences and desires have healthier and longer-lasting relationships.

Sentimental compatibility

In a relationship, emotional intimacy is just as important as physical intimacy. This includes effectively communicating emotions to one another

Psychological compatibility

This includes having a mental connection with each other, which occurs when your thoughts and opinions are similar.

Perceptual compatibility

This includes a couple having similar ideas and perspectives on an ideal married life, including family and financial values.

Perpetual compatibility

This includes a couple having shared long-term interests, vision, and beliefs in life.
