

Mistakes

To Avoid When Using a Hair Diffuser For Curly Hair

Skipping the leave-in conditioner before diffusing can cause hair dryness.

Using a hair diffuser on partially dry or dry hair increases the risk of frizz.

Using a hair diffuser on the highest settings can make the hair frizzy.

Diffusing from the tips to the roots can disrupt the natural curl pattern.

Touching hair often while diffusing reduces the moisturizing effects of the conditioner.

Skipping the scrunching step after diffusing can reduce curl definition.

Applying a strong hairspray after diffusing can result in stiff-looking curls.

