

Don't Make The MISTAKE Of Giving Up On Love

Giving up on love may make you emotionally hollow. Let's understand how.

You start to fear relationships, and romantic things appear pointless to you.

You may become a self-centered person without empathy for others.

You get into toxic relationships for the thrill of it without thinking about its consequences.

You act distant when your loved ones try to set you up with someone respectable.

You develop commitment issues because you don't believe anybody can love someone forever.

You no longer trust anyone's actions done out of genuine kindness and love.

